With its easily recognisable, aerosol art covered exterior, HQ has forged a niche for itself as a visual arts hub in the heart of Leederville. HQ has a fully equipped, professionally appointed Gallery space. The HQ Gallery is used regularly by young and not-so-young artists from around the Perth metro area to hold exhibitions and is free for hire by artists under the age of 26. HQ also has a versatile studio and creator space that can be accessed by young artists requiring space to practice their art form.

HQ holds various arts and performance workshops throughout the year, engaging young people in skills development opportunities, public exhibition and performance experience. HQ also actively seeks to connect young people with the broader community. Activities include urban art workshops, comedy workshops, live performances and live event production workshops.

Young people who access events and activities at HQ are also offered the opportunity of participating in the HQ Youth Leadership Group where they are able to contribute to the planning and delivery of activities throughout the year and volunteer at regular HQ events. The Leadership Group is also a leadership development program that provides young people with an interest in the community and creative industries with an avenue to develop new skills and networks as they transition into adulthood.
